Dear John:

I am deeply grateful for your circular letter conveying your greetings in the new year. It is good to know about your wanderings with such a lovely family. I still cherish our acquaintance in Paris and your many attentions while I was there.

I am working very hard in my job here, as you can see by the reports I am attaching to this letter. Puerto Rico is fast becoming a leading center for technical and cultural cooperation not only in regard to the New World but also to underdeveloped areas. We are looking forward to quite an expansion in the coming years. I do hope our paths may cross again. In the meantime, my best regards to you and your family.

Sincerely,
