an with the first steps taken towards Russification with the creation in January 1890 of committees to tie the Grand Duchy closer to Russia. The aim of the address was to dissuade the Emperor directly from his announced plans rather than through customary channels. Nicholas II was approached as the constitutional monarch of the Grand Duchy of Finland and not as the autocrat of all the Russias. E. Ekman

American-Scandinavian Review 1955 43(3): 237-245. relates in broad outline the principal events in the dissolution of the Swedish-Norwegian union and the peaceful establishment of the independent Norwegian monarchy in 1905. G. Rehder

3300. Rimscha, Hans von (Erlangen). DIE ENTSTEHUNG DER BALTISCHEN STAATEN [The origin of the Baltic states]. Schicksalslinie 1955 (1): 12-18. A summary of the revival of the Baltic nations during and after World War I, which was not accidental but resulted from the adroit and timely action of their leaders, who shrewdly exploited the possibilities that arose during 1917-1919. Efforts for increasing autonomy and eventual independence differed to a considerable extent in Estonia and Latvia from developments in Lithuania. R. Mueller

Historiallinen Aikakauskirja 1955 (2): 16-227. A study of the tensions in a selected innish region between the forces of conservatism and traditionalism, chiefly church and peasantry, and those elements of the population, notably journalists, merchants, and government officials, who are attracted to the emerging liberal and nationalist movements of the 'eighties. J. I. Kolehmainen

The following newspapers opposed government limitation of press freedom and were thus instrumental in the event of the military crisis: 1) the moderate, conservative Diario de Barcelona; 2) the objective, conservative and politically independent Vanguardia; 3) the indifferent Correo Catalán, which changed its political views with the stream of opinion; 4) the sensational-hungry El Diluvio, which criticized the government, and 5) the republican paper La Publicidad, which was a particularly ardent advocate of freedom of the press. Elisabeth Wimmer

3303. Llorens, Montserrat. EL PADRE ANTONIO VICENT S.J. (1837-1912) NOTAS SOBRE EL DESARROLLO DE LA ACCIÓN SOCIAL CÁTOLICA EN ESPAÑA [Father Antonio Vicent, S.J. Account of the development of Catholic social action in Spain]. Estudios de Historia Moderna 1954 4: 393-440. Father Vicent's name is closely linked with Christian social action. He aimed at the removal of class conflict without forcibly disturbing the natural anomalies within society. His greatest achievement was the foundation of the Catholic Workers' Associations, which were a union of employers and employees. Practically all social institutions in Spain can be traced directly to Father Vicent or his disciples. His most important published work is Socialismo y Anarquismo (Valencia, 1893). Elisabeth Wimmer

3304. Cúneo, Dardo. EL ROMANTICISMO SOCIAL EN LA ARGENTINA [Social romanticism in Argentina]. Cuadernos Americanos 1955 14(2): 170-205. After a short introduction to the period, the author presents short biographies of Leopoldo Lugones, Roberto Payró, José Ingenieros, Macedonio Fernández, Manuel Ugarte, and Alberto Gerchunoff. The bulk of the article consists of reprints of six articles and two poems written by the persons listed above. H. Kantor

3305. Cúneo, Dardo. NOTICIA CONMEMORATIVA SOBRE JOSÉ CARLOS MARIÁTEGUI (1930-1955) [A commemorative note about José Carlos Mariátegui (1930-1955)]. Repertorio Americano 1955 49(3): 33-35, 37. An outline of the life of Mariátegui (1895-1930), placing him in the Peruvian scene. Appended is a list of forty-three events in his life, together with a complete bibliography of his published and unpublished writings. Illustrated with a photograph of a painting of Mariátegui by Julia Codesido. H. Kantor

3306. Ferrer Canales, José. MARTÍ Y PUERTO RICO [Martí and Puerto Rico]. Cuadernos Americanos 1955 14(2): 141-169. Martí looked upon Puerto Rico, Cuba, and Santo Domingo as a unit and regarded the Partido Revolucionario Cubano [Cuban Revolutionary Party] as a mechanism to be used to free both Cuba and Puerto Rico from Spanish domination. The article cites Martí's writings about Puerto Rico and various Puerto Ricans of the period 1875-95. Also cites the writings of Puerto Ricans about Martí. H. Kantor
