Drs. I. Will Harris Retires From the Presidency of Polytechnic Institute of Puerto Rico.

25th Anniversary of the Founding of the School

A Review of His Work

To think of Polytechnic Institute of Puerto Rico is to think of I. Will Harris. One and the same, inseparable. For 25 years he has been its President. He founded the institution in 1912, March 1st. He will lift anchor and sail away, bidding goodbye to Polytechnic and to Puerto Rico, and become once more a citizen of the States—specifically, the State of Texas.

He is being succeeded by Jarvis Sneed Morris, but more of him later; we are speaking of Dr. Harris now, and how came Polytechnic.

Having scanned a lengthy historical document, one scarcely knows where to begin the story. It is a long one, full of hard knocks, but Dr. Harris could take it. In fact, he is looking for more of the same, down in Texas, where he has some notions about a farm utopia.

It was 1907 when he graduated from Park College, and entered Princeton Seminary, coming out of there in 1908. Married his classmate, Eunice Harris, that year. They heard the call of Puerto Rico thru the Presbyterian Home Board, which sent them forth.

July 1906 Will Harris and wife Eunice reached destination at San Juan. The land was full of beauty, superimposed upon poverty. Down on the Caribbean one night, preaching to about 200 souls in and about the shack of unnamed Peter, 75 children crowded in on him and asked him to send them a teacher. Their old school couldn’t read or write. Harris caught the idea, and never let loose of it until he founded Polytechnic, where hands and mind could be trained cooperatively.

Perplexed as it is, space forbids following the ramifications of a tortuous course, failure here, success there, before the great idea took root and grew. On a hunching he started a little Day School at Santa Rosa. It had ground but no money. He went as a Commissioner to General Assembly in Denver in 1909, secured a nice line of funds on paper and returned. But the School had down and died. He then took over a defunct plant at Lasus, renamed it, Palmarejo Institute, and opened for business Oct. 1, 1910. From causes beyond mortal control it too came to a premature end.

A native son, Dr. Francisco Largarde, wanting to do something for his town before he died, offered to sell Mr. Harris his 100 acre farm in the Santa Maria hills. A bargain was struck Jan. 17, 1911; brother Clarence came over from Texas to help start something. They moved over a miscellaneous outfit of shop-worn equipment from Lasus, including several lad boys. Will Harris went to the States to find some money. He sold the idea to a number of folks, got their support, and returned to find Largarde had much improved and wanted his farm back. A $500 pacifier extended the option, and in January, 1912, Mr. Harris incorporated under the name of Polytechnic Institute, with a Board of Trustees.

The Institute Opens

The first student was enrolled March 2, 1912. By May they had 8 boys and 4 girls. Mr. Harris was the whole faculty.

A Girls dormitory was built in 1913, and a boys the next year. Two Lajas buildings were knocked down and hauled over to form a recreation hall and another boys dorm. In 1914 the School was offered to the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, who took it over in 1915. A Board grant of $75,000 erected Marquis Science Hall. A new Board of Trustees was incorporated in District of Columbia in 1920. The previous year a Puerto Rican act permitted the conferring of degrees, and in 1930 D. C. authorized granting of the A.B. degree.

The Carnegie Foundation, in 1933, made a conditional grant of $250,000, a like amount to be raised elsewhere in 3 years. It was raised. One-half went to endowment. 13 of the 17 buildings are Memorials. Many of them constructed with student labor, under the supervision of brother Clarence. There is 200 acres. The industrial program is well organized, each student working a required number of hours per week. Several hundred of them, prepared for entering a living, agricultural or otherwise, on the island. On the faculty over the years have been numerous Park graduates. Eunice Harris has served as Dean of Women.

Its Silver Jubilee is being celebrated February 25th to March 2nd, honoring the founder and inaugurating his successor, Jarvis S. Morris. 1928 Park conferred on Mr. Harris the LL.D. degree.

To Texas With an Idea

As you are reading this script the subject of our sketch is on the way to Dilley, Tex., to Guadalupe Ranch, a small patch of 2500 acres. For him life is beginning again at 61.

The educator has turned farmer, but the farmer can’t forget he is an educator. He has printed a pamphlet entitled “A New Philosophy of Applied Agriculture and Game Preservation.” He smugly says: “The Unemployed educated man for the unemployed forested land.” You have guessed it.—Back to the Farm Movement. The object is to show the youth of Texas how to make a living out of the soil. He will organize these young sprouts, just out of college and nowhere to go, into a farm community. There will be an Administration Center, comprised of Community House, store, shops, stable, bank. Ranged about in the distance will be the model farms and ranches. The whole will be known as the Harris Farms, an apprenticeship in applied agriculture.

Then about the game,—to protect, propagate and preserve the wild life of the land,” such as coyotes, panthers, Mexican lorn, wildcats, badgers, alligators, stumpedillos and civet cats. Doubtless this farmer-educator-promotor must have discovered within these profusely mammal a desirability of disposition, a lovable, peaceful nature heretofore unrecognized by the amateur naturalist, which should be preserved for the comfort of posterity. On the other hand, it may be that the struggle for Puerto Rican educational independence has been so combative as to desicrate the above harmless creatures in comparison.

Thus the story of Polytechnic has not come to an end, but merely shifted its focus operadri.

THANK YOU. DUES
We thank you for your response to our SOL.
And when you think about that valuable book you are getting for sending them, it’s a good deal. We haven’t lost our lease or been forced to move, but these bargain prices will prevail until the present stock of merchandise (books) is cleaned up.
So hurry. We would like to declare a dividend by the end of the fiscal year.

CLASS OF 1907!
1ST CALL
You have a 30 Year Reunion due, without pay, this Commencement!
Will you be back to look over the old camp grounds.
Of course the place won’t look the same. Even the people have grown 30 years older, including yourselves. Time perhaps has made a great improvement in many of you.
But if not, come on back anyhow.
Such confidential information as you may care to divulge in this connection will you confide in writing to Ralph A. Waggoner, 209 W. Brogsway, Sedalia, Mo. Ralph, you may remember, is your classmate. He is pastor of the Broadway Presbyterian Church. He is a big man in Sedalia, weighing about 200. You’d be surprised how the ministry has broadened him.
Write him and he will send you a liberal sample of 1907 tonic, with directions how to use in emergencies such as a 30 Year Reunion.
